DETAILED ACTION

Notice to Applicant

1. This communication is in response to the application filed 12/19/03. Claims 1-60 are pending.

Response to Arguments

2. On pages 17-18 of the 12/19/03 responses, the Applicant argues the newly added limitations, namely that healthcare information is automatically incorporated into an intermediate presentation to generate a final presentation.

In response, it is respectfully submitted that because the method (and system) of the Jeacock are computer-enabled, the functions are "automatically" performed (i.e. are performed or function in an automated manner). For example, in col. 5 lines 32-col. 6, line 24, Jeacock discloses that patient specific information (e.g. information on the procedure to be performed) is imported from a database.

Similarly, the combination of references, Jeacock in view of Microsoft PowerPoint, that has been provided to address the limitations of claim 39 also provides means for automatically incorporating (healthcare) information from a desktop application into a plurality of slides. Microsoft PowerPoint allows information (e.g. Clip Art images and text) to be selected and imported (i.e. automatically incorporated) into the slide presentations. (Parker: pages 195-198).

Therefore, while the addition of the term "automatically" to claims 1,20 and 39 has been noted, the amendment does not alter the Examiner's interpretation of the prior art, and does not overcome the prior art rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Jeacock et al (US Patent No. 6,014,630).

As per claims 1-19, Jeacock teaches a method for selecting a presentation template, incorporating information on a healthcare procedure for a recommended course of treatment into the presentation template, incorporating user-specific data into the template and generating and saving the final presentation. (Figures 3a,3b, 4, 7a-7c; col. 3, lines 56-col. 5, lines 20; col. 6, lines 5-19). Jeacock further discloses a method that allows the user to modify the final presentation by adding, removing, and otherwise altering information in the presentation and to display the final presentation. (col. 5, lines 1-44) The final presentation (i.e. document) formatted by the software linked to a system workstation (i.e. stored to a desktop application) and printed out for the patient. (col. 3, lines 59-col. 4, lines 15; col. 6, lines 5-24).

Claims 20-38 repeat substantially the same subject matter of claims 1-19 as a set of instructions embodied on computer readable medium, causing a computer to execute the series of steps recited in claims 1-19. As the underlying process has been shown to be computer implemented and disclosed by the teachings of Jeacock in the above rejection of claims 1-19, it is readily apparent that the Jeacock reference includes a computer readable medium storing instructions to perform the recited functions on a computer. As such, these limitations are rejected for the same reasons provided in the rejection of claims 1-19, and incorporated herein.

Claims 1 and 20 have been amended to recite that healthcare information specific to the individual is automatically incorporated into a presentation to generate a final presentation. As per this limitation, see Jeacock: col. 5 lines 32-col. 6, line 24. Jeacock discloses that patient specific information (e.g. information on the procedure to be performed) is imported from a database.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 39-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jeacock in view of Parker (Microsoft Office 4 for Windows for Dummies).

As per claims 39-60, Jeacock teaches a computer system for creating and revising customized presentations to provide healthcare information to patients. The system includes at least one computer workstation with memory means and input means to type or select patient specific health care information to be incorporated into the presentation. (Figures 3a,3b, 4, 7a-7c; col. 3, lines 56-col. 5, lines 20) The system also includes software and one or more databases storing relevant data for presentation preparation. (col. 6, lines 5-19) Jeacock further discloses the use of templates for creating the presentations (col. 6, lines 5-24), but does not expressly discuss the use of slides as part of the user presentation.

Parker discloses that Microsoft Powerpoint allows users incorporate slides as part of a customized visual presentation. (Parker: pages 187-197) Microsoft PowerPoint also allows information to be automatically incorporated into the slide presentation. (Parker: pages 195-198) At the time of the Applicant's invention, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the system of Jeacock with the teaching of Parker to include slides with information that has been automatically incorporated as part of a customized patient presentation. One would have been motivated to do this to improve or increase the visual impact of the presentation and to provide a quick and efficient way for a user to review and/or reformat the final presentation.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

- Sun et al (US 2002/0022973) disclose a system and method for customized patient information presentation.

Art Unit: 3626

- Beller et al (WO 97/12544) teach a method for customized healthcare presentations for patients.

8. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
